Born and raised in pharmacy, Antonio has been crawling around pharmacies his entire life. After three years as a pharmacy technician and two years of pre-pharmacy curriculum, Antonio diverted course, graduating from The Ohio State University in 2007 with dual degrees in communications and political science before moving into the world of association management.

Thinking that pharmacy would be in his rear-view mirror forever, he ended up making his way back to his pharmacy home, heading up government affairs for the Ohio Pharmacists Association, a trade organization with a strong track record of advocating for drug pricing transparency. After years of studying the pharmacy marketplace, Antonio became increasingly perplexed and concerned as he saw drug costs spiking while payouts to pharmacies were declining.

Knowing something was being lost somewhere in the middle of an ever-growing transaction, Antonio has spent years working to crack the drug pricing code and pull the rug out from what he believes is one of the most dysfunctional marketplaces in the world.

SUPPORT BRI

YOU can help support the future of healthcare by supporting Benjamin Rush Institute. Our mission is to educate medical students about free enterprise solutions that preserve and protect the doctor-patient relationship as the primary means for delivering high quality medical care. The Biden Administration enormous spending bills include healthcare and insurance provisions that will add more onerous regulations to an already over-regulated healthcare industry, further limiting how doctors practice medicine. The future of medicine – our medical students – must be educated on how these practices will affect their them and their patients.
